

Abstract of the Disclosure

The invention concerns a DNA sequence coding for androctonine, a vector containing same for transforming a host organism and the transformation method. More particularly the invention concerns the transformation of plant cells and plants, the droxomycine produced by the transformed plants providing them with resistance to diseases, in particular those of fungal origin.--